Why were Angels Created?

In the first moment of creation, God created light; He saw that the light was good, then He separated the light from the darkness. St. Augustine once interpreted this first day of creation as referring to the angels and the fall of the wicked angels, since the Sun was not created until the fourth day of creation. If Augustine is right, what this little blurb from Genesis teaches us is that God first created the angels and that all the angels were originally created good, until some chose the darkness over the light and were subsequently separated from the realm of light.

But why did God create the angels in the first place, especially if He knew that some would turn to evil? Couldn't God have stopped the devil from causing so much harm by not creating him from the get-go? While it's hard to question the reasons and mind of God, the tradition of the Church does have some suggested responses to these important questions about the angels.

One of our traditions comes originally from an ancient Jewish source called The Life of Adam and Eve. This source narrates a conversation between the devil and Adam, during which the devil explains why he chose to disregard God's plan for him. Supposedly, it was revealed to the angels that God would create a creature that was a combination of matter and spirit, named Adam, and that this creature was to be called the Image of God—meaning God would eventually look like one of these creatures. In the great heavenly debate, Michael the Archangel presented to all the angels the Image of God, Adam, and told the angels to give due honor to him, but the devil refused. The devil convinced a third of the angels to join his side of the argument, that angelic beings should not bow down to a creature lower than themselves, and that if God were to join His divine nature to a creature, it ought to be a more perfect, more beautiful, more powerful creature—an angel like himself—not like dirty Adam.

Thus the devil and his angelic followers sinned through pride and envy by rejecting God's plan to make mankind the centerpiece of creation; they would not serve man, and thus they would not serve God. More specifically, the demons could not accept the incarnation of God as man, in the person of Jesus Christ.

But why keep the demons around once they sinned? Why not destroy them or blot them out of existence? Again, the full answer, only God knows. But this is part of the mystery of iniquity and redemptive suffering—somehow God gains greater glory by allowing mankind to fall into the depths of sin in order that He might rescue them. It may have been enough for God to show the angels how much He loves and humbles Himself by becoming a man, but imagine the angels' surprise when God still became man after all that mankind had done to offend and disobey Him; sinful humanity reveals the true extent of God's love and humility. As St. Paul says, it's hard enough to die for a just person, but God showed His love when Christ died for us while we were yet sinners. Therefore, in relation to sinful Adam, God reveals His divine mercy—His greatest attribute.

So, while the devil and his demon army came to earth to thrash Adam, marring the Image of God, twisting it beyond recognition through sin, such activity only served to give God a greater glory in victory. Nothing could stop the powerful love of God's mercy. To the soul in the deepest pit of a living hell, God granted a restoration of His holy image, if only this soul would accept and respond to His loving mercy. And it is the mission of the holy angels to inspire and guide mankind to believe in the one true God who is Mercy and who would rescue them from the tyranny of the devil. Thus all the angels serve one purpose—to glorify God. The good angels do so willingly, the fallen angels unwillingly.

"A LOOK BACK IN TIME"

In 1983, John Townsend became the first parishioner to be ordained a permanent deacon. He would be joined in that vocation in later years by Ed Gatons, Jack Krol, Ron Pyle and Gary Wolfe. The parish neared completion of the building project begun in 1982, but before the old school building was torn down, parishioners made charitable donations in exchange for the opportunity to go down the fire escape chute on its exterior. The building project was completed and dedicated in 1984. In 1987, Rev. Patrick J. Connolly was appointed pastor. Due to the continued growth of the parish, a building committee was formed to research building a new church or remodeling the existing church building. The committee met for several years before deciding to recommend building a new church. In 1997, the parish broke ground on a new church building and Rev. James Wozniak, a son of the parish, was ordained to the priesthood.

THE WORD

(Readings for September 15, 2024, Twenty-Fourth Sunday in Ordinary Time)

I. Isaiah 50:4c-9a

Isaiah prophesied: I gave my back to those who beat me and my face to buffets and spitting. I was not disgraced, for when the Lord is with me, how can I be ashamed?

II. James 2:14-18

Faith without good works is dead and worth nothing. A person should not claim to be Christian without living like me. In vain, do we profess faith without practice.

III. Mark 8:27-35

Jesus taught the disciples that the Son of Man must suffer and die. He went on to say that if they wish to follow Him they, too, must deny themselves and take up the cross.
